FOREWORD - Chair of Croydon's Local Strategic Partnership

Welcome to Croydon's latest Community Strategy. It covers the period 2013-18 and reflects the priorities that local people have told us are important to them and which have been captured in the long-term vision for the borough.

Croydon has a long history of community pride and spirit making it a great place to live and work. I want everyone to share my passion and make it a place that is open for business to those who want to invest in creating sustainable opportunity and a sense of belonging for everyone.

Croydon like other places in the country has faced social and economic difficulties. These challenges have strengthened our commitment to partnership working – not just with each other as agencies – but with the people of Croydon. Our partnership must be at the centre of everything we do. That is why we will examine our partnership to ensure it is robust and delivers the priorities in this strategy.

I am optimistic about Croydon's economic future especially as, working together we have secured the regeneration of the town centre. This has included the launch of the Connected Croydon programme, a £50m investment to regenerate the Croydon Metropolitan Centre. This regeneration will secure Croydon's economic future and attract those who want to invest here as well as more jobs for local people.

Whilst we have a clear long-term vision for the borough, we must seek to anticipate and adapt to the challenges that Croydon faces now and in the future. The needs of our communities must be our collective responsibility. We must be innovative and make greater efforts to harness our joint resources if we are to continue to deliver good quality services to the most vulnerable, carry out new responsibilities for helping those most in need, and retain all that is good about our borough. We need to make sure that all partner organisations in Croydon share a common focus and are ready to make the most of the opportunities that lie ahead.

As an award winning and innovative partnership I expect partners to take a proactive approach to promoting economic growth, improving health and wellbeing, supporting vulnerable people and making communities cohesive and safer at the same time as protecting priority local services, improving efficiency and reducing costs. As a partnership we are not complacent about the scale of our current challenges which make it vital that there is a shared response across Croydon.

This Strategy sets out the direction for the Local Strategic Partnership for the next five years and beyond. It outlines the key goals and priorities and how we aim to address them. By working together and staying focussed on what needs to be delivered over the next five years we will achieve our vision for Croydon.

I welcome any comments or suggestions that you may have on this Strategy. Please send them to croydonpartnership@croydon.gov.uk

Councillor Mike Fisher
Chair of the Local Strategic Partnership

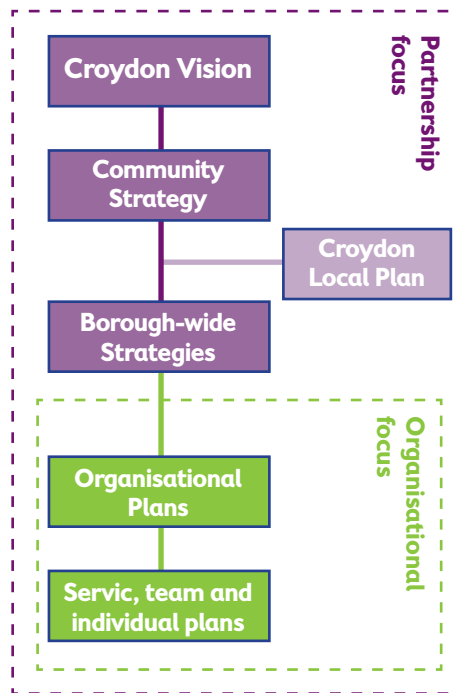

INTRODUCTION

Croydon's Community Strategy is the overarching strategy for the borough. It is our most important strategic planning document and provides a framework for the work of all partner organisations within Croydon's Local Strategic Partnership to be aligned to our vision through strategies and plans. This latest Community Strategy takes a medium term strategic perspective and has been developed in support of the delivery of Croydon's long-term vision.

The purpose of the strategy

Croydon's Community Strategy is very much a partnership document whose role and purpose is to address difficult cross cutting issues which affect the social, economic and environmental wellbeing of the area. Its purpose is not to repeat the contents of other key strategies and documents, but rather to influence the future direction. Consideration of the influence of Croydon's Community Strategy on other key documents is found in chart one.

The issues in Croydon's Community Strategy are best tackled through the combined efforts of different agencies and organisations. In identifying these issues, Croydon's Community Strategy must be based on a sound understanding and analysis of local needs and issues. This then provides the evidence base for other themed partnership strategies and plans.

How was it produced?

Croydon's Community Strategy is based on the facts and figures about the population and its needs found in the borough profile. It has evolved through a process of information gathering, discussion and debate amongst partner organisations, themed partnerships, communities and individuals. Key to the strategy's development has been an extensive consultation programme which has gathered information in a range of ways including an examination of consultation undertaken previously by our themed partnerships.

We have also conducted consultation through the Local Strategic Partnership and its meeting of Congress. These meetings happen twice a year and involve key stakeholders from across a range of agencies and organisations. This Strategy is informed by the views expressed by local people and key stakeholders about their experience of living and working in the borough. A summary of this information can be found at: www.croydon.gov.uk

Who is it for?

Croydon's Community Strategy is for everyone who lives and works in the borough but mainly intended for use by the partners involved in the borough's strategic partnership. It should also influence policy makers at regional and local levels through the themed partnership boards. Further information about the partnership can also be found in the Section, Making it happen and at appendix two.

Croydon's vision

“We are Croydon”

Croydon's vision was developed over three years ago by approximately 20,000 residents. The outcome is an ambitious and compelling vision of the type of place that Croydon wants to be by 2040.

Our vision statement - We are Croydon - sets out the quality and scope of change that is sought over the coming years. It provides the touchstone for all other strategies and plans in the borough ensuring alignment in our future direction. Croydon's vision is to be:

An Enterprising City - a place renowned for its enterprise and innovation with a highly adaptable and skilled workforce and diverse and responsive economy

A Caring City - a place noted for its safety, openness and community spirit where all people are welcome to live and work and where individuals and communities are supported to fulfil their potential and deliver solutions for themselves

A Learning City - a place that unleashes and nurtures local talent and is recognised for its culture of lifelong learning and ambitions for children and young people

A Creative City - a place noted for its culture and creativity - one of the best incubators of new artistic and sporting talent in the country

A Connected City - a place defined by its connectivity and permeability; with one of the best digital, communications and transport networks in the country

A Sustainable City - a place that sets the pace amongst London boroughs on promoting environmental sustainability and where the natural environment forms the arteries and veins of the city

About Croydon

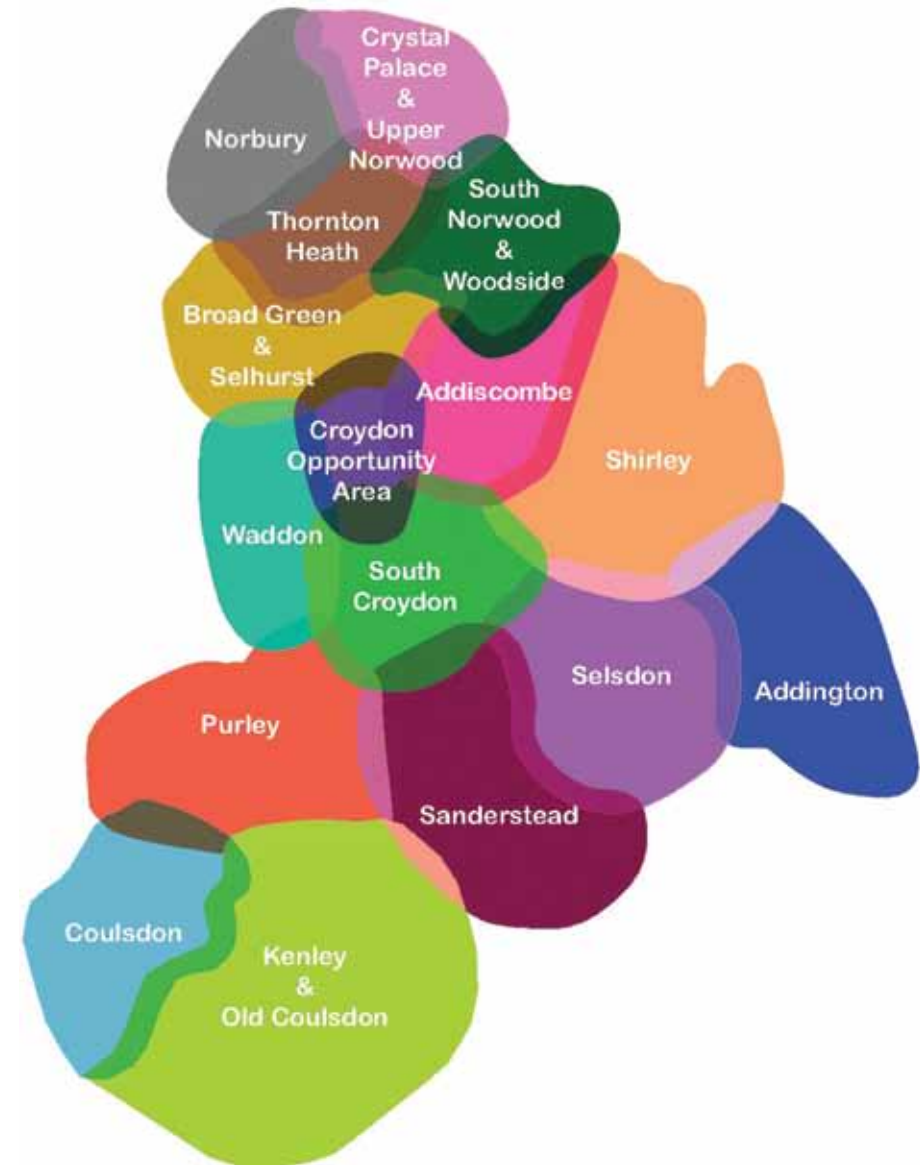

Croydon has a prime location, with fast access to London, Gatwick and the South Coast, as well as enjoying one of the best public transport networks (rail, tram and road links) in London. Croydon is a true edge city, with all the benefits of a fast paced urban environment similar to inner-London complemented by quieter more leafy suburbs reflecting outer-London.

The borough is home to one of London's largest local retail and commercial centres with a significant night-time economy. It has more than 120 parks and open spaces making it one of the greenest places in London.

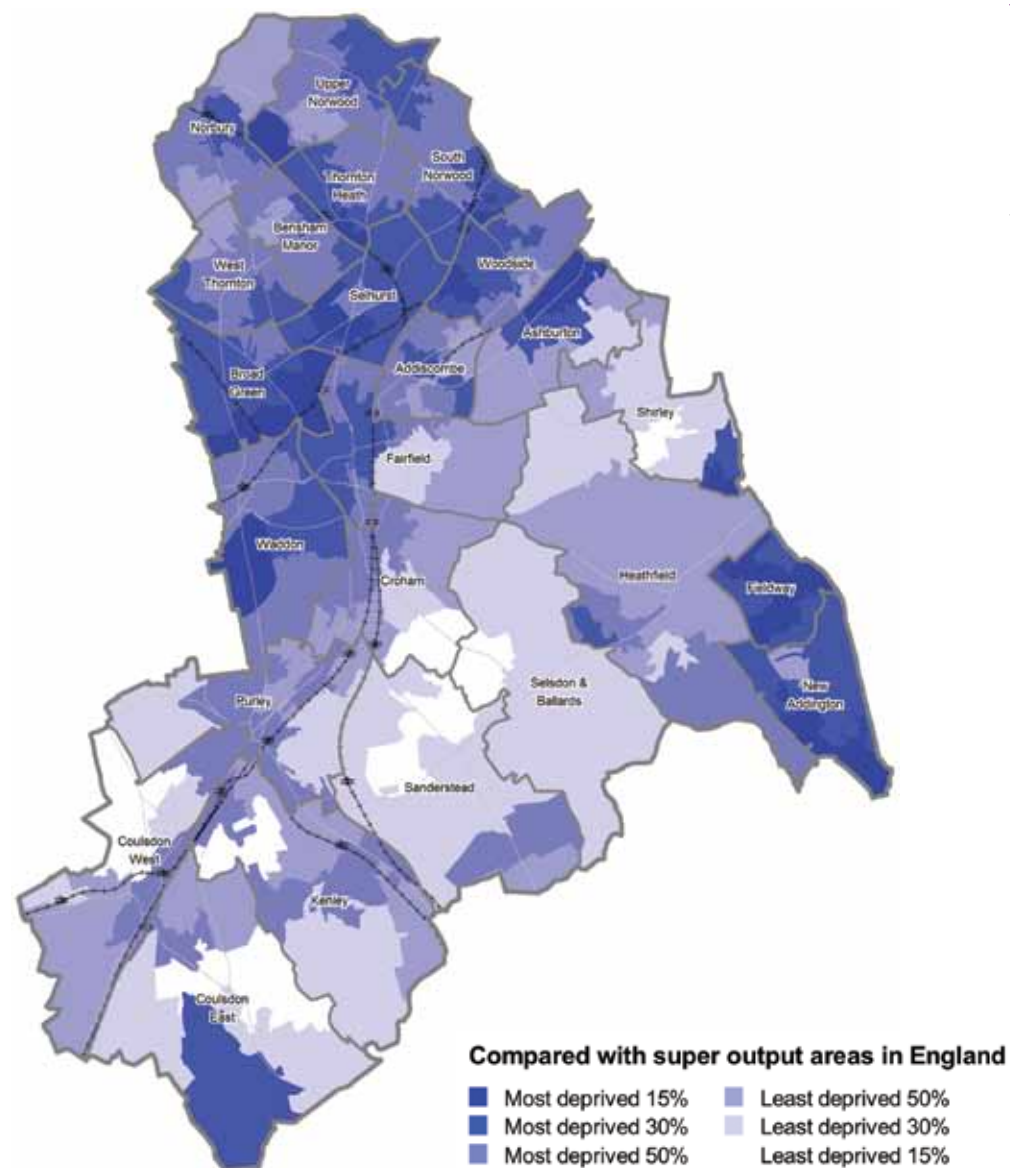

Croydon is a unique place to live and work with 16 distinct places (map one), where the north of the borough shares many characteristics with inner-London and areas in the south reflect the outskirts of the city. It is a place with some of London's most affluent areas to live as well as some of the most deprived.

Croydon's population is the largest in London with one of the fastest growing black and minority communities in South London. While the borough's residents are ageing, it also has the largest population of young people in London.

Map one: Croydon's 16 places

Map two: Index of multiple deprivation 2010

What you told us

Overall 72% of residents agree that their local area is a place where people from different backgrounds get on well together, while 69% strongly feel they belong to their local neighbourhood. The majority of residents are satisfied with the borough (73%) and their local area (79%) as a place to live. Residents in the south are more likely to say they get on with the people in their community and satisfied with where they live, while those living in the north of the borough are least likely to agree.

Community priorities include:-

- Better promotion of opportunities to get involved in their communities to make them resilient, build trust and confidence
- Help with breaking the cycle of poverty and unemployment through earlier intervention in primary and secondary schools to support children and families at risk of not being in education employment or training (NEET)
- A targeted approach to dealing with deprivation
- To attract more inward investment and enhance Croydon's reputation by promoting success
- Activities and opportunities that support young people e.g. getting them ready for work
- Promotion community based interventions to improve health, wellbeing, community safety

More information about what Croydon's communities have told us can be found at: www.croydon.gov.uk

What are Croydon's challenges?

Croydon is a great place to live, work and visit for most people. However, we know there is a need to improve outcomes for local people in some of our most deprived areas.

We know Croydon population is changing dramatically with one of the fastest growing black and minority ethnic communities, more young people than other boroughs, an emerging trend of young adults and families leaving the borough and people living longer. We need to ensure Croydon is a place that is attractive to families and young adults and services meet the needs of the people of live in the borough. There is a need to take a look at new and existing communities to identify what can be done to promote greater community cohesion and integration.

We know Croydon is already a great place to do business with a range of economic and educational opportunities that make this borough even better area to live, work and visit. There is a need to ensure businesses choose Croydon by attracting their investment. We need to ensure young people and those who are long term unemployed are ready for work and have the skills to make best use of apprenticeship, training and work experience.

Croydon is a safe place for most people but for some there is a real sense of the fear of crime and concerns about violent crime including domestic abuse, anti-social behaviour and hate crime. There is a need to build trust and confidence so that people know agencies will address the issues that matter most to them and their communities.

We know that most people in Croydon are healthy but there are differences in life expectancy between men and women as well as those living in the north and south of the borough. There is a need to do more to encourage people to live healthier lives through better information and activity as well as examine key services to ensure they are targeted.

Croydon is known for having an innovative and dynamic partnership and in tough economic times it is the strength of this partnership that is tested. There is a need to do more together with limited resources which includes considering new ways to use our assets as well as ways of working. This could involve developing community budgets, integrating and co-locating services.

To do all of this we will work better together in partnership, particularly in the context of current and probable future reductions in public sector resources. The foundations are already laid through Croydon's Strategic Partnership. We will build on this to raise our collective game, develop new and innovative approaches and work together to make a real difference.

As a partnership there are challenges for all agencies and these include:

- Addressing the deprivation experienced by people living in the north of the borough, in particular wards in the north as well as New Addington and Fieldway
- Tackling violent crime, especially domestic abuse, serious youth violence
- Tackling anti-social behaviour including hate crime and fear of crime
- Tackling growing social pressures including child poverty, lack of affordable housing and a rising trend in homelessness
- Address the underlying causes that prevent communities from becoming cohesive, integrated, resilient and active
- Tackling youth unemployment and targeting areas of the borough with high economic inactivity
- Providing opportunities for people especially those aged between 16 – 24 to be in education, training or employment
- Helping businesses to survive and thrive in Croydon, including support for small to medium enterprises
- Ensuring Croydon is promoted as a place for investment, economic growth and employment opportunity
- Strengthening the resilience of individuals and families with complex needs such as poor mental and physical health and drug and alcohol problems
- Tackling health inequalities across the borough including obesity in children and adults

Croydon's context

The Community Strategy was last updated in 2010 and since that time there have been significant changes at a national and local level. Croydon has faced major challenges as a local area that involve managing significant reductions in government funding as well as national policy reforms to welfare and housing, health, education and planning, directly impacting local people and communities. We have also taken a considered approach to the violent disorder that happened in a number of London boroughs including in Croydon in August 2011, especially as this event will have affected the way people feel about where they live and work.

At the same time we are also preparing for the regeneration of the town centre and working with local people and businesses as well as regional and national partners to secure sustainable investment and employment in the borough. All of this is happening at a time when we anticipate continued growth and change in local neighbourhoods and communities in and around Croydon, in terms of new housing, businesses and population. Given this range of challenges and opportunities it is particularly relevant and important that we are focussed on the right goals and priorities for our future direction.

All these dynamics require us to carefully consider how we can best develop and deliver excellent services in Croydon. This Community Strategy creates an opportunity for agencies to work together to explore how we harness the positive contributions and involvement from everyone in our community to help us achieve our local vision. It is also intended to help partners from all sectors by providing a framework in a way that ensures everyone living and working in Croydon is better able to benefit from the changes in their local area.

Croydon's Strategic Partnership

Croydon's strategic partnership is award winning and noted for its innovation where partners from different sectors work together to improve outcomes for local people. Croydon's public, business, community, voluntary and faith sector partners recognise that the only way to effectively and efficiently deal with these challenges is to work together in partnership.

Our most important partner is Croydon's community and by working together we are committed to building a better borough that creates sustainable opportunities so that it is a great place to live and work everyone; where we look out for, support and protect vulnerable people, and communities come together to create a sense of belonging by taking responsibility for their families and neighbourhoods.

Local stakeholders and communities need to work together with less money to find new ways of meeting the growing and changing needs of a diverse population. To achieve more with less we need to be targeted with clear goals and priorities that continue to help us move towards the borough's vision.

Together we can deliver outcomes which are beyond the scope of any one partner organisation to tackle. The partnership is currently organised into four thematic partnerships and responsible for the coordination and delivery of action which is set out in borough-wide partnership strategies and plans.

A review is currently being undertaken of the Local Strategic Partnership Structure to ensure it has the most appropriate mechanisms for collectively reviewing and steering resources to achieve the goals and priorities set out in Croydon's Community Strategy. Information on any changes to the structure will be provided in subsequent iterations of this strategy. A structure of the current partnership can be found at appendix two.

CROYDON'S GOALS AND PRIORITIES

We want Croydon to be a better borough using the talents, aspiration and ambition of the people that live and work here. To do this we need safer communities where local people live and work free from the fear of crime and the police and council are trusted to deal with the issues that affect them. We need more educational opportunities, skills and jobs so that businesses have a ready supply of the most talented people. We want to build a better borough making it a great place to invest, work, and live.

In order to protect vulnerable people we need to offer good quality, accessible and joined-up services and information so that agencies can make a difference to local people through coordinated prevention and early intervention. We want to work with stakeholders and local people to understand what they need, and involve them in shaping and delivering better outcomes.

To encourage people to take responsibility we need to build community capacity to organise and have a greater voice in the things that matter most to them, build trust and confidence in local agencies, promote resilient and integrated communities and harness community and voluntary sector enterprise, creativity and innovation. We want to ensure that people are able to help themselves, family, neighbours and communities.

A summary of the goals and priorities can be found at appendix one. Detailed information and delivery programmes supporting these goals and priorities can be found in Croydon's themed partnership plans and strategies referenced under each goal.

GOAL ONE: A BETTER BOROUGH

PRIORITY ONE - A great place to invest, work and live

Why is this important?

We want a thriving and sustainable world class economy for the future with highly skilled and motivated people.

We know that sustainable economic growth and development is best delivered through our significant town centre regeneration programme. This will act as a catalyst to attract businesses to invest, who in turn go on to thrive providing opportunities for local people.

The borough is the most important commercial centre outside central London for financial and business services. It serves as a major economic and employment centre for the region for both retail and public administration. Croydon's current 12,000 strong business base is one of the borough's most important assets.

Croydon will undergo major change and civic renewal in the next two decades, with potential for over 20,000 new homes across the borough, many in the town centre and a revitalised local economy. Croydon's development and regeneration proposals will maximise economic, social, health and environmental benefits for the borough. In particular, the plans for London Road and Town Centre Master Plans will play a major role in bringing forward positive change for people and businesses.

Croydon is working regionally with businesses and other local authorities to attract inward investment to stimulate local economic development through mechanisms such as the Local Enterprise Partnership and the Opportunity Planning Framework. In addition business growth must be based around encouraging our existing small to medium enterprise base to flourish. Key to this process is encouraging innovation via promotion and support of new start-up micro businesses.

Reforms to the planning system give residents greater control over the built environment in which they live, and communities the right to draw up neighbourhood plans and put forward development proposals that have widespread local support. The new community infrastructure levy on developers will support new infrastructure such as roads and schools and new community facilities. Investment in our local infrastructure such as our schools estate will help us to better meet the needs of our changing and growing population.

We want to enhance our cultural offer by building on the recent successful investment in Croydon's Cultural Quarter in the Old Town area, through targeted cultural regeneration. We also aim to improve the quality of our parks and green spaces, whilst protecting and enhancing their biodiversity. Local people can take an active role in protecting green spaces. At the same time we want to improve access and links to and through green spaces to encourage more physical activity including walking and cycling so that we attract increased investment in making Croydon a cycle friendly borough.

Working together we will do this by?

Coordinating an integrated and strategic approach to managing growth and change by ensuring there is a partnership understanding of the scale and nature of physical and social regeneration.

Stimulating new business, innovation and entrepreneurship by looking at measures to support small business by providing

- Appropriate infrastructure for business incubation, growth and clustering.
- Opportunities for entrepreneurship, innovation, continuous improvement and investment in skills.
- Intensive support for micro businesses.
- Mentoring and networking for businesses.

Attract and retain businesses by

- Promoting 'Choose Croydon' as a destination option that is 'open for business' and re-establishing Croydon as the first choice for businesses looking for a South London location.
- Look at the support requirements of existing businesses enabling them to grow and increase their productivity.

Improving Croydon's town centre by

- Development of the retail realm to ensure a mixed economy.
- Encouraging stronger town centre offer and developing a mixed night-time economy.
- Ensuring business accommodation reflects flexible office requirements and open two new business centres.

Improve Croydon's reputation as one of the greenest places in London by enabling local people to make use of the boroughs parks and open spaces through a range of new initiatives that encourage physical activity including walking and cycling.

Promote cultural regeneration by undertaking a review of our assets and galvanise the talent of local people to create an innovative and vibrant cultural offer that will inform the development of cultural activity.

Partnership outcomes

- More businesses locate in Croydon increasing the net business base by sector and existing business base.
- More social enterprises and small to medium businesses start-up.
- Increasing new business registration rate.
- Increasing the footfall and retail sales in the town centre.
- More people choose to stay in Croydon.
- More people attracted to Croydon's cultural offer.

PRIORITY TWO – More educational opportunities, skills and jobs

Why is this important?

We want everyone in Croydon to have the opportunity to set themselves high ambitions and to achieve them so that they live fulfilled lives.

We know that Croydon's schools and colleges offer children and young people excellent learning opportunities. Therefore as schools, colleges, and independent providers gain greater autonomy, local partners especially those who commission services we will need to set clear strategic priorities in relation to education and act as champions of deprived communities, and vulnerable people.

The route into employment is dependent upon the coordinated effort of a wide range of partners and services. There is a need for an integrated approach that encourages schools and colleges to work with local employers to access jobs for Croydon residents as well as support young people to have the skills to access opportunities. At the same time there is a need to address multiple and interrelated barriers that households face in securing employment.

We need new and existing businesses to provide jobs, apprenticeships and work experience for local people especially young adults and those who are long term unemployed.

By offering good prospects for future employment and learning where people attain higher skills and are ready to take up these opportunities we will be in a better position to retain local talent especially young adults and families.

Working together we will?

Identify and maximise employment opportunities arising from key growth areas in Croydon especially through the town centre regeneration by negotiating agreements around local jobs, training and apprenticeships.

Coordinate the efforts of partners to help young people and the long term unemployed move closer to employment by

- Supporting residents especially young people and the long term unemployed to develop the right skills at the right level to compete in the job market.
- Supporting measure to address low self-esteem and aspiration.
- Working with Croydon employers to increase the number of jobs and ensure that local residents are considered as a priority especially young people and the long-term unemployed and those living in deprived areas.
- Supporting young people to be employment ready.

Partnership outcomes

- More young adults and families choose to stay in Croydon.
- Increase the proportion of working age people in work and not on out of work benefits.
- Improve educational attainment at both primary, secondary and tertiary level.
- Improve opportunities for vulnerable children by narrowing the gap in educational attainment.
- Increase the proportion of 16 – 18 year olds in education, employment and training.

PRIORITY THREE - Safer communities

Why is this important?

We want everyone who lives or works in Croydon to feel safe and trust agencies to tackle the community safety issues that most affect them.

We know that Croydon is a safe place for most people but for some residents living some of the borough's most deprived areas experience more crime and there is a real sense of the fear of crime and concerns about anti-social behaviour including hate crime. Community safety remains one of the top concerns for Croydon residents, despite actual recorded crime rates having become more stable over recent years.

London's new police and crime plan sets out ambitious priorities around reducing key neighbourhood crimes, boosting public confidence in the police and reducing costs. In relation to criminal justice the key priorities are around ensuring swifter justice for victims, increasing compliance with community sentencing and reducing reoffending by young people. Central to this new approach is a stronger focus on the victims of crime.

Working together we will?

Produce a community safety needs assessment, a programme of consultation that informs the development of a new community safety strategy by 2015

Implement the Local Policing Model which will involve

- exploring new forms of public access between the police and council.
- providing more police through redesigned safer neighbourhood teams that are responsible for driving down crime.
- considering the establishment of a new safer neighbourhood board.

Share intelligence and information about incidents of anti-social behaviour including hate crime to ensure victims and perpetrators are identified so that early support and intervention is established.

Adopt a multi-agency approach to tackling violent crime, especially gang related and involving robbery by:

- Providing positive interventions for young people known to be at risk in particular known gang members and girls/young women.
- Continuing to work closely with community and voluntary groups to support individuals and their families to tackle underlying problems linked to re-offending especially links with deprivation, and drug and alcohol use.
- Harnessing expertise in the voluntary sector to increase community participation in promoting community safety

Partnership outcomes

- Improve public confidence in community safety services enabling them to say they feel safer in their communities.
- Improve the protection and support available to people who become the victim of crime.
- Reduce the crimes that have an impact on the lives of local people including domestic abuse and serious youth violence as well as anti-social behaviour.

Who is responsible for making this happen?

Councillor Simon Hoar
Cabinet Member for Community Safety

Nathan Elvery
Chief Executive of Croydon Council

Dave Musker
Borough Commander Croydon Police

Aaron Watson
Borough Commander Croydon Fire Service

GOAL TWO: PROTECT VULNERABLE PEOPLE

PRIORITY ONE – Good quality, accessible and joined-up services and information

Why is this important?

We want local people to have good quality services that are joined-up so that they can access the right services, at the right time and in the right place.

We know people have high expectations of public services especially health and social care. There is increasing demand for these services including emergency services, which comes at a time of tighter financial controls on public spending. In addition, the public has high expectations that the most vulnerable children and adults in society and their carers have their voices heard and are protected from abuse and neglect through strong safeguarding arrangements.

Recent high profile investigations at Winterbourne and Mid Staffordshire remind everyone of the need to promote and protect a person's right to be treated with dignity and respect and that we must put people – their voice and experience – at the heart of everything we do. In Croydon we expect safeguarding to be everybody's business and that all local communities play a part in preventing, detecting and reporting neglect and abuse.

Croydon has a large population of older people many live independent lives but some experience disability as they age. As a borough we are passionate about putting disabled people first and recognise the need to ensure we hear their voice and services meet needs in a way that encourages independence as well as fulfilled lives. We recognise that services and organisations supporting disabled and older people need to develop and be re-designed to effectively and efficiently deal with growing demands. Work is already providing more personalised and flexible services based on the individual. Conversely, we need to make the most of the opportunities that the large and sustained growth in the older population may also present.

We know with continuing reduction in public sector funding agencies will need to consider new ways of working and different options for service delivery including closer working on the development of shared services or those provided within the community. We want to use our commissioning activity to buy better outcomes for local people, in particular for people who live complex lives with multiple needs; including disabled people and those who experience persistent inequalities living in the poorest areas of the borough.

Recent reform to health and social care has seen the setting up of health and wellbeing boards, the establishment of clinical commissioning groups as well as the transfer of public health to the local authority. As with schools, who like GP consortia will operate with greater autonomy, there is a need for partners to work together to determine how best to improve the life chances of local people. This will mean highlighting the importance of a borough-wide strategic approach to public health as well as the value of community preventative services.

We know that agencies will need to do more to ensure that information and advice is accessible to different communities. There is a need to ensure that older and disabled people, families and those who are unemployed are able to use new technology so that they can make the most of integrated pathways to services.

Local people should be at the centre of the design of services which should ideally be located in the places in which they live. This could involve a greater role for the community and voluntary sector.

Working together we will?

Develop greater understanding of our diverse communities and plan for their accommodation, service and market needs ensuring there is a joined up approach to service delivery across all sectors and within all our policy planning and service design.

Improve the integration of services across organisational boundaries, including between children's and adult's services, mental, physical and disability health services, health and social care services and hospitals, to community services.

Use an evidence approach to identify need and developing interventions that are targeted at priority areas and groups of people especially those living in deprived areas, who are vulnerable or disabled.

Coordinate an integrated approach to commissioning local services that meet the needs of local people through a range of different providers including the community, voluntary and faith sectors.

Develop a diverse range of services that meet the individual needs and aspirations of disabled and older people and which promote dignity and respect including the promotion of dignity champions throughout agencies.

Encourage greater self-help options which involve

- Improving access to information, advice and guidance for vulnerable people so that they can exercise choice and live independently in their own homes.
- Exploring new ways of making information more accessible through the use of technologies such as social media.

Expect all agencies to prioritise adult and children safeguarding and ensure policy, procedure and practice is regularly reviewed in an open and transparent way across a wide range of functions from information sharing through to commissioning and delivery of services.

Explore the feasibility of conducting a review of local services that offer community based prevention and intervention services that improve access to health, social care and education.

Partnership outcomes

- Improving satisfaction with local services.
- More older people and disabled people supported to live independent and fulfilled lives.
- More services provided locally by community and voluntary sector.
- Increasing the proportion of people who say they can access good quality information about services in their neighbourhood.
- Increasing the proportion of people who say they can access good quality services in their neighbourhood.

PRIORITY TWO - Better prevention and early intervention for people who are vulnerable

Why is this important?

We want Croydon to be a place that reaches out to all of its communities to provide the support needed to help people lead independent, healthy, and productive lives.

Overall life is good for most people living in Croydon. However some of our communities lead complex lives, experience disability, multiple and inter-generation disadvantage and live in some of Croydon's most deprived areas.

One of the most important factors is persistent health inequalities which are difficult to change. They are also widening and will continue to do so unless we do things differently. This means addressing not only the short-term consequences of avoidable ill-health but also the longer-term causes and the wider determinants of poor health.

Overall, life expectancy is increasing but the life expectancy gap between the most deprived areas in Croydon and the least deprived is 9.5 years for men and 5.8 years for women. There are significant differences in preventable deaths between the most and least deprived areas in Croydon, with circulatory diseases, cancers and respiratory diseases causing the majority of deaths in deprived areas. Many of these diseases are related to unhealthy lifestyles and socio-economic circumstances such as child poverty.

Disability, mental and physical ill-health can severely impact on the quality of life of those suffering from it and those immediately around them. It is also closely associated with deprivation. We know some people who have chaotic and complex needs that can expose them to greater risks of increased experience of mental health problems as well as drug and alcohol use.

Recently the impact of not taking-up childhood immunisations has seen the emergence of life threatening illness that is entirely preventable. There is a need to ensure every child has the best start in life which involves ensuring information about the importance of immunisation programmes are widely known to encourage greater take-up by parents.

We want people to live a full a life as possible for as long as possible. Working together we can strengthen preventative approaches that encourage a 'life course approach' that starts from our citizens' earliest years and runs throughout their lives. For example prioritising childhood obesity, encouraging parents to immunise their children, promoting physical activity as part of a healthy lifestyle will improve the health and well-being of children and reduce the health impacts in later life.

We know an integrated approach to safeguarding vulnerable adults and children is an essential priority for all agencies in Croydon. Some people that have complex needs are vulnerable and can be risk of being abused. There is a need to ensure that everyone, families, carers as well as agencies share information about children and adults at risk and ensure that their voice and experience is at the centre of everything we do.

If we can do this, it will make us effective in tackling some of the persistent inequalities experienced by our most deprived communities.

Working together we will?

Expect all agencies to prioritise the work of Croydon's children and adult safeguarding boards so that victims are identified and receive the most appropriate interventions.

Adopt a joined-up approach to tackling persistent inequalities addressing the factors that drive poorer outcomes amongst the poorest and most disadvantaged communities in the borough.

Coordinate an integrated approach to tackling child poverty by:

- Supporting families in maximising income and reducing spending.
- Meeting immediate needs of children and families at risk of poverty.
- Strengthening support for families in poverty.
- Mitigating impact of poverty on families.

Tackle complex needs through early intervention:

- Extending the multi-agency front door for early intervention.
- Family engagement partnerships.
- Extending family resilience service to full size.

PRIORITY THREE - Meeting housing need

Why is this important?

We want to ensure there is a choice of housing for people at all stages of life and that housing is affordable. Croydon has comparatively high levels of home ownership, with 59% of people either owning their home outright or mortgage holders. Croydon has approximately 17% social housing and recently seen a large rise in the number of people that are privately renting their homes locally. Many residents will be affected by recent changes to welfare reforms.

We know the current housing market conditions present a significant challenge both nationally and in Croydon. Affordability is a persistent problem and the population of Croydon is projected to rise. There will also be a demographic shift with the proportion of older people increasing. Other issues include meeting the housing and support needs of vulnerable residents; eliminating rough sleeping; preventing homelessness; giving local people more choice in the housing available to them by increasing the range of housing on offer; and tackling poor housing conditions.

Working together we will?

Deliver a coordinated approach to information, advice and support for people at risk of homelessness and experiencing the impact of welfare reform.

Deliver access to affordable temporary and permanent accommodation and housing by bringing empty properties back in to use.

Manage demand by providing information, support and advice to help residents select the most appropriate housing option to meet their needs and aspirations.

Refurbish and develop new units of supported housing in partnership with housing providers.

Tackle homelessness through conducting a review of homelessness and refreshing the borough's homelessness strategy.

Coordinate an integrated response to welfare and housing reform that identifies those most at risk of further social and economic exclusion.

Maximise the supply of high quality, environmentally efficient, affordable homes in the borough.

Support social housing providers in leading the way by providing high quality, well managed and maintained housing.

Explore all options available to ensure a supply of affordable housing by working flexibly with a range of other investors and providers.

Promote the private rented housing stock as a tenure of choice for residents as well as ways of accessing home ownership options products available to Croydon's residents.

Ensure that the housing support and accommodation needs of vulnerable people are met by providing appropriate services and adaptations especially for the disabled and older people.

Ensure new housing development will support planned economic growth and wider regeneration initiatives and is sustainable both in terms of its location (to reduce travel and transport usage) and its design, built to have a minimal carbon footprint, be resilient to the impacts of climate change and have affordable running costs for the occupants.

Partnership outcomes

- Increasing the number of affordable homes.
- Reducing the number of statutory homelessness.
- Improving satisfaction with services.

GOAL THREE: TAKE RESPONSIBILITY

PRIORITY ONE – Community capacity to organise and have a greater voice in the things that matter most to them

Why is this important?

We want the community, voluntary, faith and social enterprise groups and organisations to be at the heart of our effort to improve engagement with residents and communities to better respond to their needs.

We know having stronger communities that take responsibility for their neighbourhoods is important so that local people can cope with changes that take place to their families and around them. Local people can have a dramatic impact on their neighbourhoods through a range of action that deals with anti-social behaviour, noise, fly-tipping, environmental issues and recycling, as well as supporting carers, providing child care and promoting health and wellbeing.

We want to encourage more people to get involved in their local area and when asked which activities, if any, Croydon residents would personally be willing to get involved in their local community, people are most likely to help an elderly neighbour, report environmental issues and clear the public footpaths outside their homes.

Local people can make a difference and sometimes need information and guidance about how to do this. Often community strains appear when people experience difficulty and feel they cannot influence change. Increasingly community action is the means by which local people and community groups can affect the shape of services in their areas and, where there is a real local wish to do so, local people can provide their own services in their own way for their own community.

Working together we will?

Improve participation in civic life especially among those who are under-represented or in areas where community involvement is low.

Encourage initiatives that support local people to develop as champions in their local area especially those involved in self-help and empowerment activities.

Help local people who want to get involved to develop local projects which have the backing of their communities.

Coordinate campaigns that encourage residents to get involved in protecting their local environment focussed on recycling, cleaner streets, accessible transport and improving home efficiency.

Encourage people who live and work in Croydon to get involved in volunteering opportunities especially in the most deprived areas including clear-up days and support for local community groups.

Encourage local employers to support Croydon's residents through a range of corporate social action programmes especially in deprived areas.

Encourage local residents to get involved in improving community safety in their neighbourhood by promoting safer neighbourhood panel boards, resident associations as well as make connections with others who feel the same and start up local groups.

Encourage people to have a voice and take greater responsibility for their own health and wellbeing by promoting

- Croydon's Healthwatch.
- Forums where people can have their say.
- Ways to improve health and wellbeing in the workplace.
- The five ways to wellbeing which include keep active, keep learning, make contact, take notice and keep giving.
- Safe and social use of alcohol.

Promote opportunities for communities to develop their own identities using social media and distinct branding e.g. e-community forums.

Partnership outcomes

- Increasing in regular volunteering.
- Increasing the proportion of people who feel they can influence decisions in their local area.
- Increasing the proportion of people who say they are involved in civic participation.
- Increasing the proportion of self-reported wellbeing.

Who is responsible for making this happen?

Councillor Sara Bashford

PRIORITY TWO - Trust and confidence in local agencies

Why is this important?

We want local people to have trust and confidence in local agencies to involve them in the ways that help them to have a greater say and influence. Individuals are more likely to feel they belong and can influence decisions locally in areas where people trust their local institutions.

We know that elected bodies and representatives play an important part in helping the voice of local communities to be heard throughout the borough and wider.

Factors like deprivation do not always result in poor community cohesion, as some deprived areas have high levels of community spirit. Therefore, in addition to tackling the causes of social exclusion, efforts must be made to challenge perceptions and myths about different communities and neighbourhoods.

Working together we will?

Ensure that all agencies address deprivation and inequality experienced by different groups of people and communities.

Review how we approach community engagement to ensure that future activity promotes cohesion and is used as a trusted way of growing confidence that offers a two-way dialogue with local people, decision-makers and those who deliver services.

Provide clear details of the range of mechanisms the partners will use to inform, consult and involve different communities.

Keep residents including schools and colleges, community leaders and networks and frontline workers in the public, community and voluntary sector services informed and up-to-date with current events by providing accessible information through a range of media channels.

Consider how we can make better use of social networking to engage a wider range of local people in the issues affecting their neighbourhoods.

Ensure a range of community forums exist that allow local people to have a say about what matters most to them through the stop and search monitoring group, safer neighbourhood panel boards, youth and faith groups as well as Healthwatch.

Promote transparency of information and decision making across the partnership, publishing performance information regularly.

Communicate clearly with residents, using different types of media and giving feedback on suggestions and concerns.

Promote an understanding of the service standards that residents can expect.

Provide opportunities for local residents to have a say about how money is spent in their local area.

Provide opportunities that engage with young people in the delivery and design of services that directly affect them, supporting them to participate and have their say.

Work with our communities to increase their confidence, closing the gap between perceptions and reality, particularly by working with the local media.

Provide coordinated and consistent response to community safety issues as they arise especially with the media.

Partnership outcomes

- Improving satisfaction with local public services.
- More people feel that they can influence decisions locally and take more responsibility for their collective wellbeing.
- Improving trust and confidence in local agencies.
- Increasing civic participation.
- Increasing the proportion of people who feel they can influence decisions.

Dave Musker
Borough Commander
of Croydon Police

John Goulston
Chief Executive of Croydon's

Paula Swann

Croydon's Fire Service

PRIORITY THREE - Resilient and integrated communities

Why is this important?

We want everybody to be proud of our varied and unique local distinctiveness, culture and heritage, with a strong sense of civic pride.

We know that to help communities to be strong, resilient and integrated they need to have a shared future vision and sense of belonging, a focus on what new and existing communities have in common and recognition of the value of diversity and strong and positive relationships between people from different backgrounds.

We know people who feel there is community cohesion in their local area are more likely to feel they belong to their neighbourhood and tend to be more satisfied with their area.

We want to help build better futures for Croydon residents through the social regeneration of communities and neighbourhoods, in particular in communities experiencing persistent inequalities.

Working together we will?

Take a coordinated approach to tackling persistent inequalities such as health, education and employment using available resources and where possible accessing external funding.

Develop a co-ordinated integration plan for Croydon, which sets out steps to promote stronger communities through a co-ordinated set of partnership actions.

Deliver a programme of new community and street based initiatives to strengthen neighbourhoods including visible physical improvements especially London Road.

Encourage communities to get involved in local activity designed to improve their local areas.

Examine the results from the social audit to identify gaps in delivery to facilitate community planning.

Promote activities that celebrate the diversity of Croydon's community including activity that brings people from different backgrounds together such as the big lunch.

Encourage activities that help to increase involvement especially among under-represented communities and promote understanding in local areas.

Examine the issues which impact on people's sense of belonging such as housing and lack of satisfaction with the local area.

Increase opportunities for adults and young people to take part in local activities such as volunteering.

Examine the impact of migration on settled communities and the barriers to integration such as language.

Provide information to newly arrived communities and promote interaction between new and established communities.

Partnership outcomes

- Increasing the proportion of people who say people from different backgrounds get on well together in their local area.
- Increasing the proportion of people that feel they belong to their local neighbourhood.

Who is responsible for making this happen?

Cabinet Member for Communities and Economic Development

Chief Executive of Croydon Council

Councillor Simon Hoar
Cabinet Member for Community Safety

PRIORITY FOUR - Harness community and voluntary sector enterprise, creativity, and innovation

Why is this important?

We know Croydon has a thriving voluntary and community sector, with more than 1200 organisations working in the borough in all sectors including the arts, environment, sport, health and social care. We want to harness the talents that exist in local people through our local voluntary, community, and faith sectors.

Every community is strengthened by the activities of the community, voluntary, faith and other not for profit groups and organisations (known as the third sector). This sector works across communities and with vulnerable and disadvantaged groups, providing support and helping to shape and provide services to meet identified local needs. It also contributes to economic wellbeing through the provision of training, jobs and volunteering opportunities.

Croydon is experiencing population change and increasing demand for local services across a range of sectors especially in health and social care. In addition, an increasingly diverse population also means there are new markets to explore and sectors to develop especially in hospitality, cultural, creative, digital and technological sectors.

Recent reforms indicate a need to ensure interventions are developed with the community and located where people live. This could present real opportunities through the formation of new community organisations and social enterprises where local people develop and deliver solutions to issues affecting their communities.

Working together we will?

Explore and promote initiatives that encourage opportunities for people to develop social enterprise activities and services in existing and new sectors including niche markets especially in the north of the borough.

Encourage a thriving community, voluntary and faith sector including

- Support the community and voluntary sector infrastructure organisations.
- Publishing a partnership voluntary sector compact with local agencies which sets out ways of working together.
- Developing and publishing a voluntary sector and social enterprise strategy setting out the priorities.
- Promoting opportunities that lead to new community based interventions.

Develop the capacity of the voluntary sector to encourage greater collaboration within the sector to access local commissioning opportunities especially community non-clinical initiatives.

Remove barriers to the effective involvement of voluntary sector organisations in service delivery.

Ensure voluntary sector organisations commissioned to provide services on behalf of organisations in the borough address inequality, support vulnerable people and promote good community relations.

Promote innovative use of shared spaces and the transfer of assets for community use.

Promote key successes and achievements of voluntary sector organisations.

Publish a set of partnership intentions to support local employers to deliver their corporate social responsibility programmes.

Provide opportunities for people to participate in cultural and physical activities.

Support large and small organisations to engage in the service commissioning culture of local strategic partners.

Promote the borough, its town centre and district centres as destinations and encourage local people to get involved in maintaining their vitality and viability.

Partnership outcomes

- We will have a healthy and vibrant third sector, actively engaging and participating in partnership working across the area and involved in developing and delivering services which meet local needs.
- Everyone in all our communities will know, understand and have access to information about the different groups from the sector that are active in their area.
- Increasing the proportion of local voluntary organisations which report that Croydon provides an environment for a thriving voluntary and community sector.
- Increasing the proportion of new social enterprises in deprived areas of the borough to meet local needs.
- Increasing the proportion of the social enterprise and voluntary sector organisations that provide services to meet local need.

MAKING IT HAPPEN

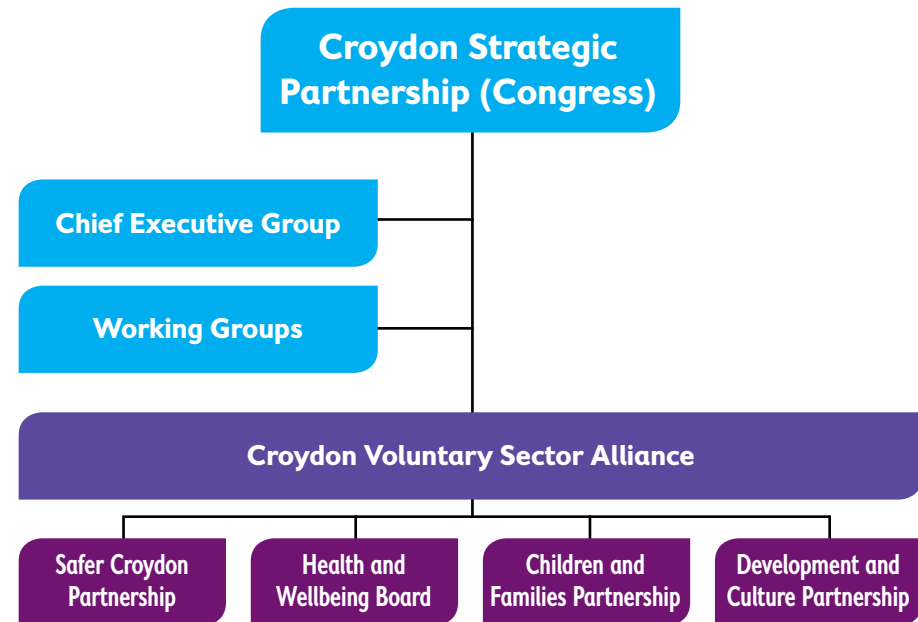

This section outlines in broad terms the mechanisms by which the ambitions of this document will be taken forward. Key to this is our Local Strategic Partnership (LSP), which brings together partners from across the public, private, voluntary, community and faith sectors working at strategic, tactical and operational levels through the structure illustrated at appendix two.

Together we can deliver outcomes which are beyond the scope of any one partner organisation to tackle. The partnership is currently organised into four thematic partnerships. A review is currently being undertaken of the Local Strategic Partnership structure to ensure it has the most appropriate mechanisms for collectively reviewing and steering resources to achieve the aspirations set out in Croydon's Community Strategy. Information on any changes to the structure will be provided in subsequent iterations of this strategy.

The LSP chief executive group will receive regular reports from each of the thematic partnership boards including the Health and Wellbeing Board as well as children and adult safeguarding Boards. This will ensure there is a joint understanding of the key policy developments, emerging priorities as well as collectively influence areas for improvement.

The performance management framework outlined on page 36 guides this process. Diagram 1 illustrates the relationship of each thematic partnership in taking forward the borough's vision, goals and priorities set out in the Community Strategy.
